

Longitude 131° Extends the Luxury Outdoors

Longitude 131° has revealed its new balconies, a contemporary addition to the existing tent-style pavilions that fit so naturally it's hard to imagine the tents without them. Designed by Southern Ocean Lodge architect Max Pritchard, the balconies offer luxurious outdoor lounging with comfy armchairs, an EcoSmart fire for the evenings and generous daybed for relaxing into views of Uluru. A luxury evening turndown service includes an after-dinner snack with accompanying digestifs, and the rollout of the new custom-designed Baillie swag under the open night sky. Perfect for lazing and star-gazing under a blanket of stars, this is glamping at its most marvellous! For more inspiration or to reserve your outback escape, start the journey on the lodge website.

Step Away from the Everyday

A perennial favourite for new and returning guests, the Remarkable Retreat showcases the wintry drama of Kangaroo Island from the warm luxury of the Great Room and guest suites. The cool season is ideal for energising walks and for encountering wildlife at its most active; sea lions and fur seals frolic in the Southern Ocean while kangaroos and wallabies graze in open pastures. Inside, a daily menu of locally-sourced cuisine is a delight in the restaurant, while the call of the open fire, a glass of South Australian red and the comfort of a cosy lounge in the Great Room is irresistible as the ocean roars outside. Embark on a special adventure or sink into luxury in the Southern Spa with bonus credits as part of the deal. Savings and bonuses abound on the Stay 4 Pay 3 package, on sale now, for stays until September 30, 2016.

Longitude 131° Introduces New Specialist Full-day Tours

From cultural heritage to wilderness adventures, there's so much more for the mindful traveller to explore at Uluru-Kata Tjuta. Designed to offer a deeper connection with the outback, Longitude 131° has developed two new specialist tours for its guest itinerary; Kings Canyon and the remote indigenous community at Ernabella Arts. Put Yourself in Tourism Australia's Virtual Picture

On Australia Day this year, Tourism Australia launched its latest international marketing campaign, promoting Australia's aquatic experiences with a latest-technology virtual reality and 360° mobile immersive video. If that sounds complicated, the result is the opposite, offering viewers the freedom to explore Australia's most remote coastlines from a birds-eye perspective. Kangaroo Island's iconic Remarkable Rocks and world-renowned Southern Ocean Lodge star in one of the campaign's mini clips. The mobile-friendly technology delivers a panoramic perspective of the region and allows the viewer to 'choose-your-own-direction' no matter where they are. It's a great escape - take five minutes, feel the ocean spray and be transported (at least virtually!) to where the wild things are, here.

Check-in to Off-grid Luxury at Capella Lodge

An easy two hour flight from the busyness of Sydney or Brisbane transports lucky visitors to the drop-in-the-ocean paradise of Lord Howe Island. As the plane lands at the tiny, white picket fenced-airport there's already a sense of travelling off the grid. With no mobile phone connection, intermittent internet and a speed limit for the island's few cars of just 25km/hr, guests prepare to slow down, disconnect with busy, technology-connected lives and embrace the rare luxury of spending time with the ones that matter most. Guests at Capella Lodge find it's easy to adapt to the natural, beach-house style luxury that blends seamlessly with the Lord Howe landscape of magnificent mountains, ancient forests and the world's southernmost coral reef. If only for a few days, the off-grid luxury at Capella is every reason to quit the city.
